Forecast for Sunday 07 Jul 2024

Weather: Rather extensive low cloud developing on western slopes overnight, mainly across the Snowdon range with isolated heavy showers, the rain perhaps turning a little more persistent for a time though. Low cloud gradually lifting through the morning, mostly clearing summits and more frequent sunny spells developing, but with showers becoming more widespread especially inland. The showers are likely to be heavy and thundery at times, with a risk of hail, especially through the early afternoon. Showers easing late afternoon and into the evening, then becoming dry by dusk with increasingly clear skies.

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 800m: 30%, increasing to 90% from late-morning.

Low Cloud and visibility: Occasional scattered or broken cloud with bases down to around 400-600m initially, mainly on western facing slopes in the north of the range. Cloud lifting mainly above summits from late-morning, but patches of cloud expected at similar levels in showers. Mostly good visibility at first, but locally moderate or poor on some western slopes. Generally very good visibility from late-morning, but temporarily poor in heavy showers.

Meteorologist's View

Moderate UV levels are forecast. Heavy showers and possible thunderstorms will lead to some dangerous conditions on the summits, with the risk of lightning and hail. Feeling unseasonably cool on the summits.

Forecast for Monday 08 Jul 2024

Weather: Dry and largely clear overnight, then a fine, sunny start to the day. Cloud building a little through the morning, bringing a chance of a very isolated shower by the afternoon, but still mostly dry with good sunny spells. Showers easing by late afternoon and likely remaining dry into the evening, however sunshine turning increasingly hazy with time.

Maximum wind: Southerly 10mph, with gusts up to 15mph.

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 800m: Greater than 95%.

Low Cloud and visibility: Very good visibility, but very locally moderate in any afternoon showers.

Temperature: Valleys: Plus 8 Celsius rising to Plus 17 Celsius.
At 800m: Plus 5 Celsius rising to Plus 12 Celsius.
Freezing level: Above summits.
